

Really, Really, Really, Really, Weird Stories

By John Shirley

Night Shade [Nightshade] Books, 1999. Soft cover. Book Condition: New. Alan M. Clark (illustrator). 1st Edition. NEW PB: SIGNED by JOHN SHIRLEY [NO Inscription]. NO remainder mark. Packed w. Cardboard & Padding. | "The 37 stories in this mind-shaking collection are grouped into four sections of ascending weirdness, from Really Weird to Really, Really, Really, Really Weird. Considering that the first entry, I Want to Get Married, Says the Worlds Smallest Man, concerns a 28"-tall midget who weds a full-size, crack-smoking whore, to brutal effect, readers may rest assured that an unforgettable trip awaits them from cover to cover. But weirdness per se doesnt seem to be Shirleys aim, except insofar as outr subject matter (as in Skeeter Junkie, wherein the mind of a heroin addict enters the body of a mosquito) or prose style (e.g., the sentences of the potent and moving Ten Things to be Grateful For, as long and sinuous as anacondas) can wrench readers from their habitual frame of reference to experience the world afresh. The author of last years Black Butterflies demonstrates throughout a fecund imagination, wicked sense of humor and thematic seriousness regarding the malleability of reality, the hellishness of drug abuse, the fragility...
