Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Limb O the Law: A Comedy in Two Acts Scene. - Elegantly furnished lawyers office of Augustus De Benham. Desk littered with writing-materials, etc. Small office opening from centre back. Augustus (walking floor with hands in his pockets). What in time is a fellow going to do in this world with no money in his pocket, I d like to know? and hows he going to get along? Talk about marrying - I can t support myself, much less a wife. Yes, I ve got plenty of clients, I know; but, confound it all, I cant make both ends meet! No matter how much money I earn, my expense column is always the longest. I wish I d never seen Miss Grayham! No, I don t either! I wish - well, of course, if I can get her, the old gentleman will settle something handsome on her - but no, Gus, old fellow, you mustn t think of that. By Jove! I wish some rich old uncle would turn up, or that some old-maid aunt would die and fill my pockets for me. Well, let me see, I ought to hear from that advertisement to-day. Nothing venture, nothing have, - a rather desperate venture on my part, but the deed is done, and it s too late to retract now, come what may. I feel desperate enough for anything. (Calls.) Kit! (Enter Kit.) Kit (ducking his head). Yes, sah, I s de pusson dat bears dat synonym. Gus. You black rascal! It would be hard to find a synonym for you. Take my hat and coat from the chair there and hang them up;...
