Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The American Journal of Philology, Vol. 18 Some other young men, not so thoroughly grounded in the literary tradition as their elders, returned from Greece with more or less enthusiasm for the revolutionary doctrine and for its author. In Hermes for 1886 (pp. 597 ff.) appeared an article by Wilamowitz, Die Buhne des Aischylos. This was based in part on the new view, and made it widely known in fragmentary form, though the article is now seen to have contained some hay and stubble along with better material. Then it was announced that our revolutionary architect was to publish a book on the subject soon. Years passed and the book did not appear; some were inclined to scoff and others to grieve. Meantime on other grounds Dorpfeld s reputation was growing. His part in the Olympia publications and a steady stream of papers in the Mittheilungen attested his power. Schliemann secured his help in excavating Tiryns, and later Troy; in 1887 Dorpfeld succeeded Petersen as First Secretary of the Institute in Athens, and the stream of publications never ceased. It was more and more widely recognized that a mind of exceptional force, training and candor was at work on the scattered remnants of Greek architecture of every sort, discovering order in supposed chaos, revealing significance in little facts till then unnoticed, clarifying and enlarging our knowledge of Hellenic and prehistoric building, and vastly improving the young art of excavation. Further, even before he became the head of the Institute, he adopted the plan of explaining on the spot accessible architectural remains to stipendiaries of the Institute and others. This plan developed into three separate courses,...
