I got to know the correspondence between needs and languages. The four types of language are: -Value(s) - Structure(d) -Relation(s) -Idea(s). Every type of them has different needs, for example the value-type is looking for esteem, which means he needs acknowledgement and respect for his actions more than other types would need it. The idea-type wants to have attentions and is a creative person, they want to play and to try new things. The relation-type needs affection and reassurance for his / her doings and loves to have contact with others. Last but not least the structured-type is happy to have methods, processes and knowledge which he / she needs to follow. This type wants conformation for that. If people don t get satisfaction for their individual physical needs they get less motivated and this could lead to mistakes in their work or behavior. These human beings develop an increased lack of emotional capital and they feel frustrated and sad. If they show and how they behave in these situations depends on the type of language they re speaking. 16 pp. Englisch.
